

ABSTRACT

According to one embodiment, a semiconductor electrochemical biosensor array (SEBA) is described. The SEBA includes an array of electrodes to receive sample material from an external source and sensor circuitry coupled to the array of electrodes. The sensor circuitry includes a plurality of sensor cells to analyze the sample material received at the array of electrodes.